REMOVE FENCES.

Dr. Varden Endorses the Plea of the Bourbon News.

In a recent issue of the Lexington
Leader, Dr. Varden, of this city, contributes the following article:

George D. Mitchell, the observant editor of the rightly named "Bourbon News," asks the property-holders of Paris why they do not remove their front fences. I cannot recollect that any of our papers ever before made this suggestion.

When these fences are of the best kind and kept in good repair—not to mention the rickety ones—they detract from the appearances of the houses and streets too. Especially so in Paris, where the streets are exceptionally narrow. With fences removed the thoroughfares would look much less contracted.

The inroad of stock on the premises does not offer so strong an objection as it did a quarter of a century ago, when every twentieth family kept a cow and these animals were allowed the freedom of the city. Almost the entire milk business is now in the hands of dairymen, who even place the ordered supply in the proper compartments of your refrigerator. What a relief to be rid of city cow-keeping and cow depredations!

And I am convinced that the milk is as pure and the butter as good as when we ourselves milked the cows and made the butter. We are more trustful than the people of the far East, who will buy milk only as they see it drawn from the goats which are daily led from house to house.

Three years ago when inquiring about the cost of an iron fence to be placed in front of a new residence on Main street, I intimated to the contractor that I had not wholly decided to have any fence. "Well," said he, "it's my business to put up iron fences, and I would like to get the job, but," he added, "if this property were mine I would not have any fence."

The building stands right on or twenty feet from the street with a grass plot extending to the pavement, and should any one offer to put up an iron fence without cost, I would say, "No, I thank you, sir." Economy and good taste loudly proclaim, "remove your fences."

Though three years have passed since
I set the example, I'm not aware that any one has followed it. I think it is likely that Mr. Mitchell's suggestion will find favor at least in some quarters, and that these eyesores will gradually be removed. This is the tendency in all progressive cities.

Many objections could doubtless be offered to such a defenceless innovation in a city like Paris, such as for instance—but no, I'll leave it to the defence to file their objections in order.

Friend George, it will at least do no harm to utter a periodic call anent this matter that the community may see that you are not on the fence but down on street fences. G. V.

INDIANA STORM-SWEPT

Destruction and Death in the North Central Portion.

So Far As Known Two Persons Were Killed and Fifty More or Less Injured—The Crops Were Destroyed.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 26.—The entire north central portion of Indiana was visited Wednesday by one of the most disastrous storms that ever swept over the state.

The storm swept sections covering hundreds of miles, extending from Hancock county northwest through the northern portion of Marion county, Hamilton and Boone counties, and doing much damage in Tippecanoe and adjacent counties. Madison county also felt its fury.

Thousands of buildings were razed, tens of thousands of trees were uprooted and now blockade highways, railroads and traction lines. Crops were utterly ruined, causing a loss estimated at nearly $2,000,000, and 50 persons were more or less injured. But two deaths have been reported with authority. That was the killing of James Van Hoy, who was caught in the ruins of a collapsed barn near Pendleton, and James Bailey, who was killed by flying timbers at McCordsville.

The course of the storm was southeast and northwest. Its path was clear across the state. In the ruins left behind are many factories, churches, school-houses and frame residences. The most severe damage was in and near Hancock county. All wire communication between the cities and towns in the devastated district is cut off.

At Maxwell, Hancock county, the United States china factory was ruined, all the buildings being destroyed. Seven workmen were injured by being caught beneath the wreck. All will recover.

The New Brothers' flour mill and grain elevators were totally destroyed, and the Friends' church was blown away.

At Cleveland, six miles southeast of Maxwell, the storm broke as the funeral of Mrs. Mary Earle was being held. The roof of an adjoining house was blown away and a piece of timber was hurled through the side of the house of mourning. It struck ex-County Clerk Sample, breaking his leg. Several others were slightly injured. Outside, three horses hitched to carriages were hurled by the wind against the trees and killed. The house was demolished and the horses harnessed to it were injured so that one of them had to be shot. Ernest Hurst and E. Helms were badly hurt by being blown against the side of a house. Seven houses were destroyed and the post office was unroofed and one side blown out.

Between Cleveland and Greenfield all the roads are blocked. In that section a heavy hail and rainfall after the wind had spent its fury. Crops are ruined and fields are several inches under water. Several farm houses are unroofed and several fine tracts of timber have been laid waste.

At Wilkinson five people were injured, one perhaps fatally. This was Charles Shepherd, of Red Key. Four houses were destroyed and general havoc created by the wind.

At Stringtown, Mrs. Cleora Hamilton was seriously injured by being caught under the wreck of her house. At Fisher's Station three persons were injured, but none fatally. From that place east into Hancock county the whole country has been greatly damaged. Crops are ruined and fences and farm buildings are down.

East of Anderson, along the line of the railroad, the railroad tracks were obstructed by the fallen poles. Through this section nearly every farm house is unroofed. At Raleigh the school-house was destroyed and nine houses were unroofed. Great patches of timber were leveled and much stock was killed by barns being blown to pieces. At Ingalls a glass factory was blown down and six workmen were more or less injured, though none fatally.

At Charlottesville the damage was great. The First Christian church, erected several years ago at a cost of several thousand dollars, is a total wreck, and the furniture is entirely destroyed.

The damage to the contents of the Pennsylvania railway freight house, freight awaiting shipment, will amount to a thousand dollars. The grain elevator belonging to the railroad near the depot was blown over and the loss on grain will amount to $20,000.

Pattison Nominated For Governor. Erie, Pa., June 26.—For the third time in 20 years ex-Gov. Robert Pattison, of Philadelphia, was nominated for governor of Pennsylvania Wednesday by the democratic state convention. George F. Guthrie, of Pittsburgh, was the unanimous choice of the convention for lieutenant governor.

The Panama Bill. Washington, June 26.—The house conferees on the canal bill have agreed to recede and accept the senate amendment. This means a practically unanimous vote in the house for the Panama canal bill.

HARVARD COMMENCEMENT.

President Roosevelt Received the Honorary Degree of LL.D.

Cambridge, Mass., June 26.—Commencement at Harvard university was of unusual interest Wednesday because of the presence of President Roosevelt, a guest of Harvard, class of 1880, who received the honorary degree of LL.D. There were other notable guests who also received the degree of LL.D., Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D.D., of Boston, and many graduates who have brought honor to their university.

As a precaution for the safety of President Roosevelt, the college yard, usually open to all, was enclosed by a fence and only holders of degrees, officers, students and guests were admitted, and these by tickets only. No ladies were admitted inside the yard and even students residing in the yard needed tickets for admission.

In opening his address at the Harvard commencement dinner Wednesday afternoon President Roosevelt said: "Let me speak for all Americans today when I say that we watch with the deepest concern and sympathy the sick bed of the English king and that all Americans in tendering their hearty sympathy to the people of Great Britain now remember keenly the outburst of genuine grief with which all England last fall greeted the calamity that befell us in the death of President McKinley."

SUNDY CIVIL BILL.

The Measure As Finally Agreed to Carries More Than $60,000,000.

Washington, June 26.—The agreement on the sundry civil appropriation bill, which was concurred in by the house Wednesday, strikes out $574,350 of the senate amendments which remained in dispute after the last conference and which amounted to $1,283,950. Some of the main items to be stricken out are: Light house tender for Porto Rico, $125,000; Cape Lookout light ship, $90,000; memorial bridge, Washington, D. C., $100,000, with limit of cost to $250,000; also the provisions for amounts for an inter-continental railroad commissioner, for statistics of marriage and divorce, for busts of Senators Morrill and Voorhees, for a hall of records in Washington and for a number of minor light house projects.

A favorable agreement was reached appropriating $2,000,000 for the construction of buildings as an enlargement of military posts at Hawaii. The provisions segregating certain appropriations for military posts and allowing the secretary of war to accept donations of land for the establishment of military posts and national cemeteries were stricken out. The bill is finally agreed to carries $60,125,359.

LORD PAUNCEFOTE'S REMAINS.

No Change in the Arrangements For the Removal to England.

Washington, June 26.—It is stated that there will be no change in the arrangements already made for the removal of the remains of the late Lord Pauncefote to England as a result of the king's illness. It was the plan to have the funeral ship Brooklyn arrive in England about July 14, after the coronation ceremonies were over. The navy department Wednesday received a telegram announcing the departure of the Brooklyn from New York for Annapolis, where the remains will be taken aboard.

New York June 26.—Lady Pauncefote, widow of the late British ambassador to the United States, and her daughters, the Misses Maude, Sibyl and Audrey Pauncefote, sailed for England Wednesday on the St. Paul.

HANGED TO A TREE.

Wiley Campbell, Colored, Lynched For Attempted Assault.

Laurel, Miss., June 26.—Wiley Campbell, a mulatto, who on Friday last attempted a criminal assault on Miss Alice Barefield near Cocoa, Ala., was captured, taken to the scene of his crime and fully identified by the young lady, whose throat he had badly gashed with a knife, and also by her mother, who was knocked down and dangerously injured. The Negro voluntarily confessed his crime, stating that it was his intention to kill both the young lady and her mother, had he not been frightened off by a dog. Immediately after the confession the Negro was hanged to a tree and his body riddled with bullets. The crowd of 600 men then dispersed.

MANCHURIA.

China Renounces All Claim to Sovereignty in That Country.

London, June 26.—In a dispatch from Peking the correspondent there of the Daily Mail says he hears, upon the highest authority, in the recent mining and railways concessions agreement with Russia a clause exists under which China virtually renounces all claims to sovereignty in Manchuria.

Association of Farmers' Institute. Washington, June 26.—The American Association of Farmers' Institute workers devoted Wednesday's sessions to addresses, papers and reports on state work. Most of the delegates spent Wednesday afternoon at Mt. Vernon.

Forest Fires in Colorado. Denver, June 26.—Forest fires raging in various parts of Colorado have done a vast amount of damage. It is declared by the state officials who have been investigating that most of them are of incendiary origin.

VENEZUELAN REVOLT.

The Situation is Still Considered Critical.

Our Navy Department Stands Ready to Meet Almost Any Exigency That May Arise in Venezuela—War Ships There.

Washington, June 25.—The state department Tuesday received a cablegram from United States Minister Bowen, at Caracas. The officials declined to make public the text of the dispatch, but it is understood that it makes out a critical state of affairs arising from the present revolutionary movement against President Castro, which is generally recognized as the strongest that has yet threatened him.

The navy department stands ready to meet almost any exigency which may arise in Venezuela. The Cincinnati and the Topeka are lying at La Guayra, and the gunboat Marietta is en route to San Juan, P. R. The department's intention is to have the Marietta proceed thence to Colon and relieve the Machias, but she will lie at San Juan until it appears assured that her services will not be needed to reinforce the Cincinnati and Topeka in protecting American lives and property in Venezuela.

A report of an important development in Venezuela, which, if borne out, undoubtedly will make a great change in the status of affairs there, has been received from an unofficial source in the republic. It is stated that Venezuela has adjusted her relations with Colombia so as to allow of the complete withdrawal of the government's forces of about 8,000 men from the Colombian border, and that this army now can be rushed to the relief of President Castro at Caracas, who is represented in the advice reaching Washington as being sorely beset by the revolutionists under Gen. Matos. Late mail advices received here say that Gen. Matos has divided his forces and is now approaching Caracas from the rear and from both east and west.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, June 26.—Advices received here from Venezuela, under date of June 20, say President Castro recently tried to occupy Layela (on the Gulf of Coro). He sent Gen. Calmenares with a large force of troops to attack the town by sea, hoping that Gen. Ayala would assist by land and catch the revolutionists who are there commanded by Gen. Riera, Gen. Matos' first lieutenant, between two fires, but for unknown reasons there was no assistance by land, and Gen. Calmenares, after three hours' fighting, was compelled to reembark his troops and abandon the attack.

During the morning of June 20 Gen. Riera left Lavela with 1,500 men and attacked Coro, the capital of the state of Falcon, nine miles distant. After five hours' battle, Gen. Ayala, first vice president of the republic and commander of Castro's army, and Gen. Telleria, president of the state of Falcon; 17 generals and 45 colonels surrendered, with 5 guns and 1,682 men. The moral effect of this victory is incalculable on all the country, as President Castro lately represented in bulletins that Gen. Riera was flying with only ten followers.

COWHIDED A MINISTER.

A Judge in Virginia Committed a Penitentiary Offense.

Richmond, Va., June 25.—Rev. C. H. Crawford, president of the Anti-Saloon league of Virginia, was assaulted and cowhided by Judge Clarence J. Campbell, of Amherst, Tuesday. The minister criticized the judge for a local option decision, and was taken from here under guard to answer a charge of contempt. Cowhiding is a penitentiary offense in Virginia. The affair has caused intense excitement. Judge Campbell was a member of the legislature and of the constitutional convention.

CUBAN SCHOOL CENSUS.

A Total of 396,255 of All Races—Seventy Per Cent. White.

Washington, June 25.—United States Minister Squires, at Havana, has sent a dispatch to the secretary of state giving the result of the school census of Cuba, taken a short time ago. He says all children from 6 to 18 years of age are included, making a total of 396,255 of all races, with 70 per cent. white and 51½ per cent. male.

Killed Thirty-One Persons.

Boston, June 25.—Jane Toppan, who was sent to the Taunton insane asylum by a jury at Barnstable Monday, where she was tried for the murder of Mrs. Mary D. Gibbs, has made a confession to her senior counsel, Judge Fred M. Bixby, that she killed 31 persons. They were patients whom she had nursed.

Protocol Ratified.

Washington, June 25.—The protocol providing for the extension of the time for the ratification of treaty between the United States and Denmark of the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States has been ratified. The time is extended for one year.

Took the Oath.

Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony, June 25.—Lord Milner, governor of the Transvaal and British high commissioner in South Africa, arrived here Tuesday and took the oath as governor of the colony.

THE WINIFREDE MINES.

Nearly One Hundred Men Went to Work Monday Morning.

Charleston, W. Va., June 24.—Nearly 100 men went in at Winifrede Monday and operators who lost their men because Winifrede went out are expecting them to return. On the other hand, it is reported that Raymond City, down the river from Charleston, will go out Tuesday. The transfer of men to Ohio mines continues. Agent Ayers left Monday morning with 88 men. Rend & Co., who have closed their mines in this state indefinitely, are running their mines in Ohio. Supplies from headquarters have not come to all mines, and Monday a committee in Charleston was soliciting subscriptions to support miners who are on strike.

Cumberland, Md., June 24.—Four hundred miners employed by the Austen Coal and Coke Co., and in the Orr and Hite mines in the Newburg, W. Va., field went on strike Monday. The men struck for the union scale, and in sympathy with the Pennsylvania and other West Virginia strikers.

Shamokin, Pa., June 24.—The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Co. Monday withdrew the policemen and non-union firemen from the Henry Clay and Big Mountain collieries and will, it is said, abandon these operations. The water is within a few feet of the upper level in the Henry Clay and will soon run into the Sterling mines, which will also likely be abandoned. The workings are all connected and before the strike employed 1,400 men and boys.

FUNERAL OF KING ALBERT.

Ambassadors, Ministers and Deputations of Foreign Officers Present.

Dresden, Saxony, June 24.—The funeral of King Albert of Saxony, who died June 19, which took place here Monday evening, was most impressive. The Catholic court church, where the funeral service was held, was draped in black. The coffin of the king was covered with a red satin pall and around it a vigil has been kept by Saxon officers and dignitaries of the Saxon court since it was conveyed to the church last Saturday. At the service Monday evening the nave of the church was occupied by members of the diplomatic corps, the extraordinary missions to Dresden to attend the king's funeral, which include Andrew D. White and the Marquis de Noailles, respectively the United States and French ambassadors to Germany, ministers, members of the diet and deputations of foreign officers.

TWO BLOWN TO PIECES.

A Man and Woman Dynamited—Baby With Them Uninjured.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 24.—Dynamite destroyed the house near La Follette occupied by Herd Jones and Martha Chapman early Monday. They were both blown to pieces, but a baby with them was thrown several yards without injury. Four cases of dynamite are missing from Will Park's railroad commissary. Jones and the woman were from Knoxville. He was a foreman on the works.

Robert Jenkins was arrested at La Follette Monday afternoon on the charge of murder. A coroner's jury, which investigated the cause of the explosion, required only five minutes time to hold Jenkins responsible, and he was arrested when he drove into town. Revenge for having been discharged by the foreman is the alleged motive.

THE CUBAN BLACKS.

Petition Congress to Annul the Discrimination Against Them.

Havana, June 24.—At a meeting of the colored inhabitants of Cuba held here Monday the participants voted to petition the Cuban congress to annul the existing military orders which make distinctions against the blacks. They denied any intention of rising, and said they were not conspiring, but simply claiming their rights legally and with dignity. They declared the country belonged to them equally with the whites and expressed a desire to live in peace. Those present at the meeting also asserted that the black and white races were on an equal footing in Cuba. As a result of the recent clamor raised by the blacks for office, they have been offered 80 places on the police force and 12 positions as letter carriers.

Clevelands Go to Buzzard's Bay.

Princeton, N. J., June 24.—Former President and Mrs. Cleveland and family left Princeton Monday afternoon for Buzzard's Bay, where they will spend the summer. They will return to Princeton about October 1.

Will Secure Telegraph Lines.

Philadelphia, June 24.—Negotiations have been finally concluded whereby the Postal Telegraph Co. will secure the 3,500 offices and all lines owned by the Pennsylvania railroad, now operated by the Western Union.

Will Be Transferred to Paris.

London, June 24.—The idea prevails that Michael Henry Herbert will not long occupy the post of British ambassador to the United States. He will be transferred to Paris, when Sir Edmund J. Edmonson, the present ambassador, retires.

President's Relatives Injured.

Milford, Ct., June 24.—Rev. R. H. Roosevelt and his brother, J. L. Roosevelt, of Brooklyn, cousins of President Roosevelt, were slightly injured by lightning while standing on the porch of Mr. Roosevelt's house.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, June 20.—Senate—An isthmian canal, while not yet absolutely assured, is nearer to construction than it ever has been. The senate Thursday by a majority of eight votes adopted the Spooner substitute for the Hepburn Nicaragua canal bill, the vote on the substitute being 42 to 34. After two amendments to the measure had been adopted, one providing for a commission to supervise the construction of the canal and the other providing for the issuance of $130,000,000 of two per cent. gold bonds to raise money with which to construct the waterway, it was passed by a vote of 67 to 6. The Spooner substitute in brief provides that the president shall select the Panama route if he can obtain a clear title to the Panama Canal Co. property, but, otherwise, he shall adopt the Nicaraguan route. The Panama route was considered more desirable by the senate than the Nicaraguan route. The only question left open is the title to the property, and that the president will determine if the house should adopt the senate's amendment to its bill. The senate had some debate over the trouble into which it has gotten with the house over amendments to the army appropriation bill, and finally asked for a conference with the house.

House—The opening day of the week's debate on the Philippine government bill in the house was signalized by a remarkably strong and exhaustive speech by Mr. Cooper (Wis.), chairman of the committee on insular affairs. He spoke for almost three hours and was given close attention by both sides of the house.

Washington, June 21.—Senate—No business of importance was transacted by the senate Friday in open session except to agree to a conference report finally disposing of the military academy appropriation bill. Soon after the disposition of routine business the senate went into executive session and at 3:10 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

House—Debate on the Philippines civil government bill continued in the house from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., and at a session held at night. The speakers were given close attention, each side enthusiastically applauding its respective orators.

Washington, June 24.—Senate—A motion was entered formally in the senate Monday by Mr. Quay (Pa.) to discharge the committee on territories from further consideration of what is known as the omnibus territorial bill—a measure to admit as states the territories of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona. Mr. Quay spoke briefly but forcibly in support of his motion. No action was taken on the motion. During the latter part of the session the unfinished business, the bill ratifying a convention with the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, was under discussion. It was not disposed of.

Washington, June 25.—Senate—The senate Tuesday passed bills creating a national forest reserve in the Southern Appalachian mountains and ratifying the agreement between the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians of the Indian territory and the United States. The first bill provides for the purchase of 4,000,000 of acres in the Southern Appalachian system at a cost not to exceed $10,000,000. The secretary of agriculture is to designate the lands to be purchased and is to take measures to preserve the hardwood forests which they bear. Authorizing the president to receive public lands and buildings in the island of Porto Rico for public uses and granting other public lands and buildings to the government of Porto Rico, the provision giving the resident commissioner for Porto Rico to the United States a seat in the house of representatives being eliminated; authorizing the president to appoint Lieut. Commander William P. Randall a commander on the retired list of the navy.

House—Two notable speeches marked the closing of the general debate on the Philippines civil government bill Tuesday. They were made by Mr. Landis (Ind., rep.), and by Mr. Williams (Miss., dem.). There were big demonstrations after each concluded. The other speakers were Messrs. Ball (Tex.), Jones (Va.), Shaforth (Col.) and Crumpacker (Ind.). The latter closed the general debate for the bill.

Washington, June 26.—Senate—The senate Wednesday disposed for this session of the omnibus statehood question which has been pending for several days. Mr. Beveridge (Ind.), chairman of the committee on territories, announced that a report on the bill before the committee would be made on the third day of the next session. This was satisfactory to Mr. Quay (Pa.), who, after securing an agreement that the committee's report should be the unfinished business on and after the 10th of December until it was disposed of, withdrew his motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the measure. The senate took up the calendar and passed a large number of bills of minor importance. The conference report on the army appropriation bill was agreed to, thus passing that measure and eliminating the friction which has existed between the two houses over it.

House—The Philippine civil government bill was thrown open to amendment in the house. Very slow progress was made, only 15 of the 50 pages of the bill being completed. The earlier portion of the day was devoted to consideration of conference reports on the sundry civil army and naval appropriation bills. The house adopted a proposition agreeable to the senate with reference to the disputed items in the army bill and by a vote of 63 to 95 refused to agree to the senate amendments to the naval bill providing for five submarine torpedo boats.

KING EDWARD VERY ILL

An Operation For an Intestinal Trouble Performed.

Indescribable Consternation Prevails Throughout the Country—The Coronation Has Been Indefinitely Postponed.

London, June 25.—With dramatic suddenness King Edward has been stricken down upon the eve of his coronation. He lies in a critical state at Buckingham palace. In spite of the intensity of this tragic interruption, the lower element of London are "mafficking" through the flag-decked streets, their portion of society in gowns and jewels has gathered at what is called a gala coronation dinner at one of the fashionable hotels.

Indescribable consternation prevails throughout the country and this consternation is reflected in the cablegrams received from all the centers of the universe.

King Edward is in a room facing the beautiful gardens of Buckingham palace and far from the street and the crowd. If Tuesday night's progress is maintained he will probably tide over the effects of his severe operation, which has successfully removed the local trouble. But should any complications occur, such as septic peritonitis or blood poisoning, it is feared his majesty's present physical and nervous condition would prove unequal to the strain involved. There is conse-to lessen the king's grief and disappointment, although she was evidently greatly distressed.

The pope and the king of Italy and other monarchs have cabled anxious inquiries concerning King Edward's progress and dispatches received from all parts of the world reflect the intensity of feeling occasioned by the unexpected news of his majesty's illness and sympathy with the British nation.

London, June 26.—The following bulletin was issued after 11 o'clock Wednesday night. The king continues to make satisfactory progress. He slept some hours during the day. He complains very little of discomfort and is more cheerful. The wound is doing well. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

London, June 26.—King Edward's condition Wednesday night was even more satisfactory than has been indicated by the last bulletin. He has made a decided improvement and the feeling at Buckingham palace is very hopeful. His majesty is able to take nourishment; he had scrambled eggs and a little hock and soda Wednesday evening and with his own hands he opened several telegrams.

The bulletin issued at 11 o'clock Wednesday night is regarded as being the first occasion upon which the king's doctors have allowed themselves to express even to a small degree, the hopeful feelings they undoubtedly, even though privately, entertain. Thirty-six hours have now elapsed since the operation was performed and the absence of complications creates hopefulness in all quarters, although as has been frequently said in these dispatches several days to be healthy, and the unexpected existence of a large abscess in the caecum was discovered.

Whether or not there is any foundation for these rumors, the bulletins have seemed to indicate that the surgeons were satisfied, in the first instance, with the evacuation of the abscess and that they adopted no attempt to remove the appendix nor or strictures which might contain the germs of future danger, probably preferring to defer such operation for a radical cure to some future period.

KING EDWARD'S INSURANCE.

The Enormous Sum of $24,000,000 Carried on His Life.

New York, June 26.—In the event of the death of King Edward VII., the insurance companies of England will suffer the most staggering blow known in the history of that branch of financial investment. King Edward carries the enormous sum of $3,600,000 placed with English companies. This is on personal policies, upon which he pays premiums out of his private purse. The total risks on his life, on policies by business men is placed at $21,000,000.

The czar of Russia is said to carry personal insurance of $4,000,000 as well as $1,500,000 on the life of the zarina and $2,500,000 on that of the Grand Duchess Olga. The emperor of Germany carries $5,000,000 personal insurance.

REGRET AT ST. JOHNS.

All the Local Coronation Fetes There Will Be Postponed.

St. Johns, N. F., June 25.—The news of King Edward's illness and the postponement of the coronation was officially announced here Tuesday afternoon. It has awakened profound regret and general sympathy. Gov. Boyle has intimated that all the local coronation fetes will be postponed.

Commodore Montferand, in command of the French squadron now here, and Capt. Montgomery, of the British cruiser Charybdis, which is also in port, conferred with Gov. Boyle Thursday evening respecting the affair.

President Sends a Cablegram.

Washington, June 25.—The president just before leaving the white house for the railroad station sent the following cablegram to King Edward: His Majesty, Edward VII., London: I ask your majesty to accept my sincere assurances of sympathy and wishes for speedy convalescence. Theodore Roosevelt.

Stock Market Affected.

New York, June 25.—The official announcement of the serious illness of the king of England and the decision to postpone the coronation indefinitely was an inevitable shock to the securities market of the world.

CONFLAGRATION AT DALLAS.

Twenty-Three Residences Destroyed and 100 People Homeless.

Dallas, Tex., June 25.—Twenty-three residences were destroyed in East Dallas Tuesday and over 100 people made homeless within two hours. Fireman John Clark was overcome by heat and died Tuesday night. Eight other men and one woman were overcome by the heat and injured otherwise during the progress of the conflagration, but none of them are in a serious condition. The property loss will reach fully $70,000, and the insurance in most cases is very light.

The fire originated in a residence which was being remodeled at Haskell and Simpson avenues. Every piece of fire equipment in the city was called to the scene and a hard fight made to control the blaze which was fanned by a strong south wind.

THE FREIGHT HANDLERS.

They Threaten to Strike—It Would Involve 10,000 Men.

Chicago, June 26.—A fight that would involve 10,000 men and tie up the freight business of the city it may begin July 1. If it should come to pass it would be a contest between the railroads on one side and the freight handlers on the other. The men submitted a proposition Wednesday demanding a general increase of 2½ per cent. in their wages.

The general managers of the various roads held a meeting in the afternoon at which the disposition to make a fight was manifested.

Spain's Unruly King.

Madrid, June 26.—Since the coronation of King Alfonso the quarrels between him and the dowager queen Maria, his mother, have been so frequent and violent that they have become a court scandal. Her slightest effort to guide the monarch has resulted in a tirade of profanity. Recently, in the presence of servants, the young king informed his mother that he would expel her from the palace if she did not respect his wishes. Alfonso's manners have been generally insufferable since his coronation.

Bishop of Porto Rico.

REGARDING MEDICAL TERMS.

Rules as to Certain Plurals That Are Applicable Also to a Number of Other Words.

How to form the plural of some medical words is a puzzle to many physicians. We have been asked especially as to the proper form of the plural of neuritis, nephritis, etc., and of iris, formula, etc. It seems to us the general rule must be that if they are English words, i. e., written in Roman and not in italics, they should form the plural just as other English plurals are formed. If they are still foreign words, of course, the plurals must be those commanded by the language whence they come. There is hardly a better proof of the acclimatization than the adoption of the English form of plural, says American Medicine.

If the Latin form is preserved, then we should print the words in italics and use it as little as possible. But in English we are compelled to use neuritis, etc., because there are no other English words descriptive of the facts. Such words are as thoroughly anglicized as they can be. If not, we should use the Greek alphabet in printing them. Why, therefore, preserve the Latin or Greek forms of plurals? Who would say lexica instead of lexicons, factota and ultimata instead of factotums and ultimatus? In the same way we think that chondromas, carcinomas, fibromas, etc., addendums, ovens, erratums, mediums, fociuses, funguses, formulas, genuses, stamens, indexes, apparatuses, appendixes, cherubs, seraphs, bandits, criteriones, etc., are the proper plural forms. In words ending in -is, the change to -es, in forming the plural, is so well established and so simple that it should not be interfered with.

In this way we have accepted and habitually use analyses, bases, crises, hypotheses, oases, parentheses, theses, etc. Why should we not form the plurals of our words ending in -itis in the same way, instead of the Greek -itides? The forms neuritis, nephritis, nephritides, etc. We would prefer irises to irides and iritides to iritides. The objections to -itides are so evident that they need not be discussed, and -itides is scarcely likely to be accepted, although it is perfectly proper and preferable to -itides.

Military Artists of Malta.

Of all the quaint and varied sights shown to the passing stranger, perhaps there is none more attractive than the officers' quarters in the main guard of the citadel of Valetta. Long ago some officer, finding the time hang heavy on his hands, and having in him besides a turn for sketching, be thought him to draw upon the bare yellow washed wall of his ungarished room a picture in colors. The next officer probably thought he could do as well, or better, and he, too, left his handiwork upon the walls; and as years rolled by there grew up a custom, now firmly established, for every regiment serving in Malta and doing main guard duty to leave behind a remembrance of itself in the shape of a sketch on the walls, in pencil, chalk or paint. Thus now, instead of plain unlovely walls, exists this quaint irregular patchwork of pictures, well known throughout the services and to those who use this highway to the east—Navy and Army.

A Good Smile.

He wished to be poetic, and it seemed to him he had a good simile. As he leaned toward her he produced a ring. "My love for you," he said, "is like this ring. There is no end to it." She examined the ring with interest and then handed it back. "My love for you," she said, "is also like the ring. There is no beginning to it."—Chicago Post.

It pays to take time for OUT-OF-DOOR SPORTS. The policy of all work and no play is a losing proposition from every view point. Variety is the law of nature and the man who has not a wholesome pastime is an object of pity. In these days of intense application and high-pressure living the man does not live who can keep up the pace and not vary his mental activity with some kind of diversion. If he holds his nose close to the grindstone and refuses to take any relaxation, he will suffer a loss of force in one direction or another. He cheats himself when he thinks to cheat nature by an unremitting mental concentration along a single line.

As a nation we have mastered the art of working save in one vital particular—WE HAVE NOT YET LEARNED HOW TO PLAY.

By HON. CARTER H. HARRISON, Mayor of Chicago.

Every man and youth should take at least a half-holiday a week. From the street laborer to the millionaire this rule should not know a single exception.

AND EVERY MAN SHOULD PLAY AS HEARTILY AS HE WORKS. This he is not likely to do unless he takes up some active pastime or sport in which he becomes so completely absorbed that, for the time being, he forgets all else.

It matters little what form of sport he adopts, so long as it commands his entire interest and enthusiasm. Bicycling, golf, baseball, target shooting, hunting, fishing, tennis, fencing—all these are good wholesome diversions.

Personally I regret that the bicycle seems to have fallen into temporary unpopularity, as wheeling is not only a magnificent exercise but affords a wide variety of restful diversion. Target shooting is another pastime which commands the enthusiasm of its devotees and is so absorbing that one can think of nothing else while engaged in it.

It is clearly the duty of employers to give their employes a weekly holiday. On the other hand THE EMPLOYEE IS UNDER OBLIGATION TO USE HIS HOLIDAY FOR PURPOSES OF RECREATION INSTEAD OF FOR PRIVATE DRUDGERY. Parents also should give their boys and girls a fair and regular allowance of playtime, even in cases where the children must contribute to the family support. In short, IT PAYS TO TAKE TIME FOR PLAY, and to take it regularly.

THE STRICKEN KING OF ENGLAND.

quently intense anxiety as to the outcome. The king's doctors believe that his majesty would have been dead before now except for the operation. His condition became so alarming Monday night that at one time it was feared death might ensue before the surgeon's knife could afford him relief. Intense swelling of the extremities, accompanied by alarming symptoms of mortification, constituted the emergency which demanded an immediate operation.

Shortly after 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon his majesty moved from his couch to the operating table and the anæsthetic was administered. Sir Frederick Treves made the incision near the patient's groin and carried it upwards, with an outward slant for nearly four inches. The obstruction was removed and a tubing was placed in the affected intestine.

King Edward's first words when he returned to consciousness were to ask for "George," and the prince of Wales, who was waiting in the next room was immediately admitted to his father's presence.

As a result of the operation the coronation ceremony, which was scheduled for Thursday, was indefinitely postponed, and it is questionable whether it will ever occur. If the king improves it will take at least six weeks before he can recover sufficiently to undergo the strain.

A significant feature, and one which indicates the serious aspect of the king's condition, is the fact that no orders have been issued for the troops now in London to return to their various posts.

Queen Alexandra has borne the strain of the past week with the bravest spirit. She was always fearful of what might happen. Her majesty took her part in the festivities at Ascot and elsewhere without revealing any signs of her inward anxiety, and when she was told Tuesday that an operation was imperative and that the coronation would have to be postponed, she quietly answered: "Have I not felt that this would happen?" And asked "How does the king bear it?" Upon receiving an assuring reply, Queen Alexandra exerted herself to appear cheerful and to devise means must pass before the possibility of danger can be eliminated.

Quiet and depressed the crowds waited outside Buckingham palace for the night's final news of the sovereign. For several hours they kept their patient vigil, wandering aimlessly, but with palpable anxiety, over the open space which fronts the royal residence. For some reason or another a feeling pervaded the crowds that if the king lived until Wednesday night he would live to be crowned.

Inside the palace all was quiet. Queen Alexandra, who had been in the vicinity of the sick room the entire day, dined with a few members of the royal family. The callers who came to the palace in the course of the evening contented themselves with driving up to the outer gates where they alighted and walked in to inquire at the querries entrance for the latest news. There they met only liveried servants and small knots of reporters. With the exception of these callers, and the noblemen who have the entrance to the court, everybody was rigidly excluded from the palace by the police. Lord Gray, a director of the British South African Co., and who recently visited the United States, is among those having entree to the court. He said to a representative of the press Wednesday night that he had good hope for the king's recovery and that he was sure that every Englishman was deeply touched with the sympathy of the United States in the present calamity.

"Although," Lord Gray added, "such kind expressions of feeling are only what I should expect after my recent pleasant experience of American hospitality."

An Unexpected Large Abscess in the Coecum Was Discovered.

London, June 25.—Rumors were afloat Wednesday morning, although the necessity of surgery in his majesty's case was obvious, the actual operation was misdirected. The symptoms of great pain and high temperature pointed to appendicitis, but when the appendix was revealed it proved

The "Royal Muskoka."

The opening up of the Highlands of Ontario, Canada, and the beautiful Muskoka Lake region has been a veritable labour of love to the advertising department of the Grand Trunk Railway and the coming summer promises such an influx of American tourists as will amply justify the outlay in hotel accommodation which has been recently made. The "Royal Muskoka," in fact, promises to become a Canada, in summer, what the "Royal Ponchartraine" is to Florida in the winter months, the fashionable resort of the continent, where the romantic and the beautiful can be enjoyed with all the luxury and comfort of the most modern hotel life. The "Royal Muskoka" which has been built at the cost of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, very much resembles the architecture of the famous Flagler hotels, soft gray stucco walls, timbered across under its red-tiled roof, with deep cool verandahs, commanding views of the surrounding lakes and islands. It has accommodations for 400 guests and is the finest summer hotel in Canada. For all information as to rates, routes, etc., and illustrated descriptive literature, apply to G. T. Bell, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, Canada.

The home was tastefully decorated with smylax and vines and looked most inviting. The bridal ceremony was performed by Elder Lloyd Darsie, of the Christian church. There were no attendants.

A handsome luncheon was served immediately after the wedding ceremony. The bride's bouquet, which was thrown from the landing on the stairway, was caught by Miss Clements, of Cincinnati. The bride's cake was cut and all present drew for prizes.

Miss Matilda Alexander drew the thimble, Miss Mary Lou Fithian the ring. Miss Parrish is one of our most popular young society ladies and is a musician of rare talent, while the groom is well and favorably known, being one of the head clerks at the Grand Hotel, in Cincinnati. The happy pair left on the 3:30 afternoon train for a trip to the lakes.

Quite a number of relatives and friends from Cincinnati and New York were present. The presents were numerous and costly.

The entertainment which was to have been given by members of Garth Lodge, A. O. U. W., on Friday, July Fourth, has been postponed to Friday, July 11th. This was necessitated by reason of not sufficient rehearsals. The lodge intends to put on a first-class entertainment, and every member desired to be letter perfect in his part.

The play, "The Great Libel Case," will prove to be one of the funniest farces ever seen on the stage of the Grand. Most of the characters have been localized. The defense will be represented by "Col. Breckenridge." The prosecution will be conducted by "Charley Brownstone," and the securing of the jury and testimony of the various witnesses will be a laughable treat.

The vaudeville part of the entertainment will be new and novel. No expense is being spared by Garth Lodge in making this one of the most successful entertainments ever given in Paris. There will be a large delegation from the lodges in the neighboring towns.

Tickets are being sold by members of the lodge. A prize of five dollars is offered to the child selling the most tickets and several are competing for it. Tickets may be secured at Borland's paint store, and may be exchanged for

BACK ON THE FARM.

When the roar of the city comes up from the street, there rises a vision ineffably sweet. Of a scene far away, of a dear, tranquil spot—My old childhood home that shall ne'er be forgot. It is long, long ago since I bade it good-by. With a quivering lip, with a tear in my eye; And through all the years that have passed comes the charm Of those olden, those golden days back on the farm. Do the violets there in the meadow still grow? Does the little brook still through its leafy haunts flow? Are the fields just as green, is the forest as cool? Do the minnows still shimmer and flash in the pool? Ah, that dear scene, the fairest I ever looked on. I know is unchanged, though some loved ones are gone. It has still the old grace, it has still the old charm. With the world at its happiest, back on the farm.

Some day when this struggle, this turmoil shall cease. And weary I long for a haven of peace. May fate guide my footsteps again to the place. The memory of which time can never efface. Let me pass in its calm the last years of my life. Far away from the town with its feverish strife! May the old roof-tree shelter me, safe from all harm. While I rest like a tired child, back on the farm! Malcolm Douglas, in Orange Judd Farmer.

Rumors of the excitement had spread to the four quarters of the town and citizens came running from every direction, adding their numbers and their excitement to the tumultuous gathering in the hotel.

"Give the man a show!" cried Christopher Waffle, shrilly, springing upon a chair in the office. "Don't act like a lot of hyenas! There's law in this town and Waffle knows how to deal it!"

"Down with old Waffle!" bellowed the crowd; "let's take the law into our own hands!"

The mob swarmed about Waffle's chair, overturned it, and the judge went down and was lost in the human wave that rolled over him.

Meantime Guy and Pedro had been doing yeoman service in behalf of the headstrong Dingle. The little man had been crowded into a five-by-seven linen closet off the upper hall and the door locked on him. Guy, the key in his hand, turned away and confronted the clamoring multitude that struggled up the stairs.

"You are men, not brutes," he shouted, "civilized citizens and not a barbarian horde!" He had used that speech once in his callow youth for a school declamation, and he poured forth that much of it with all his power. It sounded well, caught the ears of the unruly townspeople, and proved the entering wedge for a little reason. "Look!" Guy waved the key. "We have locked Col. Dingle in a closet, and if you will appoint some one to guard him, some one whom you can all trust, we will proceed to debate this question and decide, as dispassionately as we can, what shall be done with our prisoner. Don't be like ravening wolves—more of the declamation—'but prove that you are reasonable beings. Let us go down into the office and reason together.'"

"Herbert has got the right end of the stick," seconded Judge Waffle, lifting up his voice from the top of the office counter. "Do as he says and let's have a consensus of opinion."

"That is my wish," shouted Col. Reeve from the foot of the stairs. "Come down, fellow citizens, come down and we will talk the matter over."

To have their leader add his personal request settled the matter, and the riotous citizens on the stairs began to descend.

"Who shall guard the prisoner?" asked Guy. "Mr. Pedro Smith?"

"No," thundered Keever; "let Sampson stand in the hall before the door."

Sampson pushed up the stairs with alacrity, took the key from Guy's hand and proceeded at once to his post. When all the others were to the punishment which should be meted out to Col. Dingle was at once begun.

A few suggested hanging in no equivocal terms; a large number were of the opinion that tarring and feathering was as far as they should go, while a conservative element believed that Col. Dingle would suffer sufficient punishment if he were set astride a pole and ridden out of town. There was but one point on which the agreement was anything like being unanimous, and that was that Dingle, before he was dealt with in any manner whatever, should go down on his knees to Col. Keever and implore his pardon.

Guy was against this and so was Waffle, and, of course, Bill Comfort. Arguments pro and con came fast and furious and an hour passed without bringing the dissenting factions any closer together than they were at first. Misunderstandings began to crop out and more than one harsh word was bandied back and forth.

Just when it seemed that the wrangling citizens would come to blows a despairing cry for help floated down from upstairs. It was Sampson's voice! What had happened?

A flash every voice was hushed and the crowd caught its breath. Then came the slamming of a door, followed by a crashing sound and a hollow groan.

Guy led the rush for the second story and found, when he reached the top of the stairs, that the closet door was ajar, the prisoner gone and Sampson lying in a huddled heap on the floor without sound or movement.

The astounded citizens looked from one to another, and, as they looked, the swift fall of a horse's hoofs echoed up from the street, accompanied by a shrill and triumphant yell. With one accord the crowd flocked to the windows and caught a fleeting glimpse of Col. Dingle careering madly in the direction of Harmony. He was mounted on the horse which Guy had ridden the night before, and was waving over his head the weather vane that had been recently affixed to the roof of the new courthouse.

CHAPTER V.

The citizens of Concord were stupefied. That weather-vane was a symbol of their defiance of the other town and to have the hated Dingle come brazenly among them, insult their leader in a peculiarly irritating manner, escape mysteriously while they were wrangling over the method of his punishment, and flee with the grotesque galvanized figure waving over his head was enough to paralyze the most rabid partizan.

Christopher Waffle was a Concord man to the marrow of his bones; but he had no love for Col. Keever—possibly because the Colonel had once overcharged him for a threshing "ad." Nor had Waffle admired the Colonel's handiwork as exemplified in the weather-vane. The judge had said that he was coarse and brutally insolent and that something would happen on account of it for which they would be sorry. In the present crisis the judge was first to find his voice and he cried in tones vibrant with a certain kind of triumph:

"I told you so!"

"That's what Waffle said all along," supplemented Bill Comfort.

The swarm turned upon the judge wrathfully and Col. Keever shouted:

"And do you, sir, do you mean to champion the cause of this contemptible sneak from the other side of the county?"

"No, never! But Dingle has done this town a service by making off with that monstrosity."

"What?" gasped the crowd, glaring at Waffle.

Bill Comfort planted himself at the judge's side and defiantly reiterated the judge's statement.

Col. Keever was red and wrathful. A clash was impending and Guy pushed his way between the impending factions.

"Enough of this," said he. "We have a powerful enemy in Vlandingham, and we cannot hope to win unless we present an undivided front. Instead of contending among ourselves suppose we inquire into the method of Col. Dingle's escape? And Sampson—we are forgetting about him. He may be severely hurt."

This was sufficient to turn the attention of the crowd into another channel.

"What's that?" Guy asked, glancing at the speaker.

"I do not know a thing about them. They haven't spoken half a dozen words to me."

"Have you made any guess as to what they are here for?"

"Some charity or other, I suppose." "Please ask them to come to this parlor. Tell them that a gentleman who is charitably disposed would like a short interview with them."

Pedro's eyes opened wide as he went away to carry out Guy's request. Presently there was a rustle of garments along the hall and the two ladies, still deeply veiled, entered the parlor. Guy bowed. They acknowledged the greeting with a slight courtesy. Pedro was standing in the door.

"I will join you in the office in a few moments, Mr. Smith," said Guy, significantly, and Pedro went away disappointedly.

The young man waited until he heard the proprietor's footsteps descending the length of the stairs and then advanced to one of the ladies and handed her the chain which he had found a short time before.

"You must have the clasp repaired, Miss Vlandingham," he said, in a low tone.

Both ladies started back instinctively; and then a low laugh came from Miss Betty as she switched her veil aside and revealed her smiling face.

"You are very kind, Mr. Herbert," said she, taking the bracelet. "Lois, this is the gentleman of whom I was telling you. We are discovered, you see, in spite of all our precautions, and that proves that the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley. Mr. Herbert, Miss Pinkney."

Miss Pinkney was reassured by her companion's confident manner and likewise dropped her veil. She was a darkly beautiful girl and, although she seemed a trifle frightened, her gaze was steady and her lips were rigidly firm. She bowed formally.

"Miss Pinkney," resumed Miss Betty, "is a very dear friend of mine, and quite as determined to assist in winning the county seat as I am."

"You have both been very reckless," said Guy, gravely. "The citizens of Concord are exceedingly wrought up over the events of the morning, and I tremble to think of your position if you chanced to be discovered."

"We shall not be discovered," answered Miss Betty, pertly. "That is, not unless you see fit to reveal our identity."

"You know I would not do that," retorted Guy, indignantly. "But we are here in the interests of Harmony, you know."

"I have no doubt of that."

"It would be to your interest to have us approached and—made prisoners."

Miss Lois paled and flashed a startled glance at her companion.

"I would rather have Concord lose the county seat," said Guy.

Miss Betty fixed her melting blue eyes upon him for a space.

"Sampson," said the Colonel, tenderly. "Do you know me? Look, boy!"

"Course I know you! Who hit me with that bucket of water, that's what I want to find out! Nice way to treat a man when he's down!"

Sampson got up energetically and looked about him with indignant eyes. "There, there, Samp," said the Colonel, soothingly. "You were knocked down by that brute of a Dingle. Don't you remember?"

"Oh, yes," returned Sampson, peering at the open door of the closet and rubbing his forehead in a bewildered way. "Did he escape?"

"I should say he did, Sampson. How did it happen? Tell us about it."

"Well," replied Sampson, "I heard him hunting around in that closet and I opened the door to see what he was up to. After that there's a blank kind of mixed up with shooting stars, comets and other bright things."

"Where did he hit you?" inquired Guy.

"Give it up."

"That is exactly what Guy did. Either the printer had had a timely attack of heart failure or else he was shamming."

"What's this?" asked Comfort who had wandered into the closet and was now standing with his eyes fixed on the door. The next moment he stepped back into the hall, pulled the door shut and all could see that there was a letter fastened to one of the panels with a pin. The crowd surged forward eagerly.

"For that arch-conspirator, Keever, with the compliments of Col. Dingle," read Mr. Glimmer as he jerked the note from the door and handed it to the Colonel.

"Read it, Colonel," chorused the crowd, palpitating with curiosity.

The Colonel tore off the end of the envelope and drew out the inclosed sheet. His eyes flashed fire as he swept over the few lines the note contained, his face became convulsed with passion and his breast shook with his labored breathing.

"Read it, read it!" clamored the bystanders.

"No!" roared the Colonel. "This is for me alone, for me. I have borne with this contemptible cur beyond endurance. The villain! The rascal! Let him look to himself now if he can!"

The Colonel spun about on his heel and made off as fast as he was able. Sampson shot after him and then the crowd disintegrated by twos and threes and drifted in the direction of the post office, discussing the exciting events of the morning and asking each other what that note could possibly have contained to set the Colonel off at such a tangent.

A favorable moment presenting itself, Guy drew Pedro into the parlor on the second floor.

"Those two Sisters of Charity are staying in this hotel, aren't they, Mr. Smith?" asked the young man.

"Yes," replied Pedro.

"Where did they come from? Do you know?"

"I don't know a thing about them. They haven't spoken half a dozen words to me."

"Have you made any guess as to what they are here for?"

Pedro's eyes opened wide as he went away to carry out Guy's request. Presently there was a rustle of garments along the hall and the two ladies, still deeply veiled, entered the parlor. Guy bowed. They acknowledged the greeting with a slight courtesy. Pedro was standing in the door.

"I will join you in the office in a few moments, Mr. Smith," said Guy, significantly, and Pedro went away disappointedly.

The young man waited until he heard the proprietor's footsteps descending the length of the stairs and then advanced to one of the ladies and handed her the chain which he had found a short time before.

"You must have the clasp repaired, Miss Vlandingham," he said, in a low tone.

Both ladies started back instinctively; and then a low laugh came from Miss Betty as she switched her veil aside and revealed her smiling face.

"You are very kind, Mr. Herbert," said she, taking the bracelet. "Lois, this is the gentleman of whom I was telling you. We are discovered, you see, in spite of all our precautions, and that proves that the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley. Mr. Herbert, Miss Pinkney."

Miss Pinkney was reassured by her companion's confident manner and likewise dropped her veil. She was a darkly beautiful girl and, although she seemed a trifle frightened, her gaze was steady and her lips were rigidly firm. She bowed formally.

"Miss Pinkney," resumed Miss Betty, "is a very dear friend of mine, and quite as determined to assist in winning the county seat as I am."

"You have both been very reckless," said Guy, gravely. "The citizens of Concord are exceedingly wrought up over the events of the morning, and I tremble to think of your position if you chanced to be discovered."

"We shall not be discovered," answered Miss Betty, pertly. "That is, not unless you see fit to reveal our identity."

"You know I would not do that," retorted Guy, indignantly. "But we are here in the interests of Harmony, you know."

"I have no doubt of that."

"It would be to your interest to have us approached and—made prisoners."

Miss Lois paled and flashed a startled glance at her companion.

"I would rather have Concord lose the county seat," said Guy.

Miss Betty fixed her melting blue eyes upon him for a space.

"Concord will be ruined when Harp money gets the county seat," she went on. "I suppose, however, that you are very wealthy and would consider as a mere bagatelle the depreciation in value of a thousand or more lots."

Guy started to tell her that he had hardly a dollar he could call his own, outside of the town, but he bit his lip and kept the words back.

"Miss Vlandingham," he said, instead, "you and Miss Pinkney must return at once to Harmony. I will get a conveyance and drive you back."

"Not for worlds would I allow you to do that! If the Concord people ever found out what you had done they would turn against you."

"I'll chance it."

"Perhaps you would, but we won't." Miss Betty tossed her head.

Guy was desperate.

"Really, Miss Vlandingham," he said, earnestly, "I must insist that you let me drive you back to Harmony."

"Really!" exclaimed Miss Betty, laughing at him with her eyes. "Well, sir, we insist on staying here until we accomplish the work that brought us. You will not deport us against our will?"

"You are a pair of madcaps!" averred Guy helplessly. "If you came over here to assist Col. Dingle—"

"We did not come for that," she interrupted, hastily. "I am sorry you have such a poor opinion of us as to think we would bear a hand in such a matter. Had I been informed of Col. Dingle's purpose he would never have come here this morning."

"Yet I found your bracelet close to the room from which Col. Dingle escaped."

HIS SYSTEM FAILED.

Willie Couldn't See the Doctor's Eye Because It Was Not Visible.

Dr. Saxton was a very learned man, with thin skin that reddened on the slightest provocation, and very light—not to say white—eye-lashes. In the hard days immediately after the civil war, in the absence of other employment, the good doctor took charge of the village school, and was soon nearly beside himself with what seemed the impossible task of getting little Willie Brewer to learn his abcs. Finally Dr. Saxton resorted to a system of mnemonics original with himself and began with what he thought were the easiest letters, relating Woman's Home Companion.

"Now, Willie," he said, "when you come to this long, straight letter just think of your eye. Remember, now, that is 'I.'"

But when Willie came back to the doctor's knee an hour later he had forgotten.

"What is that, my son?" inquired the doctor.

"I do know."

"Oh, yes, you do. What is it?" encouragingly.

"I do know," with mournful conviction.

"What do you see here?" asked the doctor, pointing his forefinger close to his own eye and involuntarily shutting and squinting up that organ as he did so.

Willie looked earnestly and much longer than seemed necessary. "I don't see nothing," he at last whispered out, "but six little white hairs."

Ambrose Bierce, while out in San Francisco recently, visited the new house of an old friend, a gentleman of Irish extraction. The hostess evidently took great pride in the house, the furnishings of which were new and beautiful and gave every evidence of taste and refinement. Mr. Bierce, who has an eye for the beautiful, gave unstinted praise to everything he saw.

"But," he said, "I am sorry to see that your house, beautiful as it is, lacks one ornament which no Irish house should be without."

"What is that?" she asked, unsuspiciously.

"A pig," replied Mr. Bierce, with a satisfied chuckle.

The hostess's eyes sparkled.

"It did," she said, indignantly, "but you have supplied the want."—N. Y. Times.

Not so many years ago there was a veteran teacher in the boys' high school who often made his classes wince under the lash of his bitter sarcasm and ready wit. One day a little half-starved yellow cur strayed into the school, and the boys thought they saw a chance to express their feelings towards "Fussy," who was busy in another room. The frightened mongrel was picked up, quickly fitted with a pair of large wire spectacles and placed on the teacher's chair. "Fussy" entered the room, walked to his desk, calmly surveyed the work of his pupils, and then, turning to them, pleasantly said: "In my absence, I see you have held a business meeting and elected one of your number chairman."—Argonaut.

The Murder at Fordham

By JOHN H. RAFTERY.

THE night clerk made a long argument to the effect that nearly every celebrated murder mystery had been solved at last, but old Barney Patton, the house detective, refused to be convinced.

"Your theory that 'murder will out' may be all right in what you call celebrated crimes," said the old fellow, "but my experience is that it won't wash as regards the numberless minor cases that are neither never solved or in which the culprit is never punished. And it isn't always the fault of the police, either. They may be morally and most reasonably certain of the guilt of a man or a woman and yet be utterly unable to prove it to the satisfaction of a jury. There are so many obstacles in the form of court practice, the technicalities of courts, that, to me, the wonder is, so many criminals are punished."

"I remember the first case I ever worked on and what a disappointment it was to find myself balked at last by the fixed requirements of that judicial machinery that is supposed to be inexorable in the pursuit of all wrongdoers. I was sent up from the city to the town of Fordham, which had just been shocked by a rather singular midnight murder. The victim was a married woman named Celia Fordyce, who had recently moved into the neighborhood and was living in a pretty two-story cottage at the edge of town, with her husband and their only child, a daughter. It seems that he had been detained till a late hour at his store, and, having walked homeward, was within a block of his cottage when he heard cries of murder, and, running forward, saw Bertha, his daughter, in her nightgown, standing in the front veranda screaming for help.

"She excitedly exclaimed that a burglar must have gotten into the house and killed Mrs. Fordyce while she slept. It was nearly ten o'clock that morning when I reached the house, glad to find that the authorities of Fordham had taken charge of the place and that the house and its contents had been kept in the exact condition prevailing during the night of the crime. I learned that Mrs. Fordyce's body had been found on the floor of the back parlor nearly six feet from the bed which she had occupied; that a Winchester rifle, the muzzle in her hand had been found beside the body. An examination of the body and of the room showed that two shots had been fired—both from the rifle. One lodged in the woodwork of the bed, just above the pillow, and the other had passed through the woman's heart, and was found under the skin near the spinal column.

"Fordyce told me that the rifle had always stood in the closet of the room occupied by himself and his wife. That since his coming to Fordham, it had never been out of its leather case. It was evident that the murderer had found the weapon, taken it out of its case and turned it upon the awakening woman. Was there another weapon in the house? There had been, he said a pistol which was always kept loaded under his or his wife's pillow. Where was it? Nobody knew. I questioned Miss Bertha, who was a demure, rather comely girl of perhaps 17. She had been asleep in her room, which was the hall room on the second floor. The first shot had awakened her and she remembered sitting up in bed to listen. Hearing no further disturbance, but quite frightened, she got up and bolted her door on the inside. Then she heard a second shot and a moment later the sound of a body falling, then a rush of footsteps up the carpeted stair and back through the hall leading the length of the house. It had been some minutes, she thought, before she gained courage to light the gas. Then she called down over the balustrade, but, getting no answer, came into the hall, lighting each gas jet as she went, till she was in the reception hall downstairs. From there she saw her mother, face-down, on the floor. Unlocking the front door, which was fastened with a Yale lock and on the latch, she went out on the veranda and began to scream. Then her father had come running. That was all either Fordyce or his daughter could tell about the matter.

"I went back through the upstairs hall, and found the window at the end raised about two feet. I looked out and saw on the tin roof of the little summer kitchen below a leather rifle case. Then I searched the whole house from cellar to attic, but found no sign of the missing pistol. No robbery had been done, because Fordyce identified everything of value, and even showed me about $300 in bills, his wife's pin money, which was tucked carefully into an old, painted or gilded gourd on the dresser. I was puzzled about the pistol's disappearance, but concluded that the robber had secured that first, had probably awakened Mrs. Fordyce in that way and made off after the murder with the revolver in his pocket. Yet how or why, having secured the pistol, the intruder had found time or cause to uncase the rifle and use it in preference to the smaller, handier gun, I couldn't figure out. That robbery had been the motive. I didn't doubt for an instant, but when I examined the ground about the cottage, though it was quite muddy from the rain of the night before, I could find no trace of the escaping house-breaker. I made sure that everything had been locked except that one window, and it seemed as plain as day that the murderer must have climbed in over the kitchen roof and out by the same route. What had prompted him to carry the rifle case that far? How had he got from the roof of the summer kitchen to the distant back fence without leaving a print of his footsteps? There was neither pavement nor walk in the yard, for the cottage was new and the bare clay about it was soft and untrodden. At either side of the cottage was a bare area at least 25 feet wide. There were no footprints anywhere. Where was the pistol? I searched that house a dozen times that day, even unfolding the clean linen in the closets and rummaging in Bertha's trunk, to the great anger of her grief-stricken father. But it was not to be found. I spent the night proving to my own satisfaction that Fordyce had actually been at his store till half an hour before the murder must have occurred. Nobody knew much about the family. He had come with his wife six months before and had bought the Ferris store and tinware business. He seemed to be a fine man, a trifle younger than his wife, but apparently happy.

"The women who had met her all spoke well of Mrs. Fordyce. Bertha, the daughter, had come home from boarding school at Ogdensburg in May. It was about June 10 that the murder occurred. Now, after finding out as much as I could, I made up my mind, and it cost me many a twinge to do so. I made up my mind that Bertha had killed her own mother! It was such a preposterous, monstrous suspicion that I was ashamed of it myself and, of course, dared not mention it to anyone else, at least, until I had some sound evidence. She was apparently a very emotional, cultivated young girl and I couldn't think of the least shadow of motive sufficient to urge her to so hateful and unnatural a crime, but the facts, few but adamant, told me, in spite of myself, that she had done it. Now in a case like that, where the evidence is wholly circumstantial and at that, far from final, it is absolutely necessary to find or supply a motive. I was so sure of my theory that I spent a week at the Ogdensburg school trying to find out all about Bertha, her disposition, vagaries, regard for her home and her mother. Everything was favorable to the girl. There was not a hint of criticism upon which I might fasten the thread of justification for my suspicion. I went suddenly back to Fordham and searched the Fordyce house again. I don't know what moved me to it, but I got out on the tin roof, and netting a warped place where the metal had raised about an inch from the level, I thrust in my hand and pulled out the missing pistol that had been stolen from under Fordyce's pillow!

"Meanwhile the coroner's jury had laid the crime at the door of 'party or parties unknown' and, certain as I felt that this strange girl must have abstracted her parents' weapon in the daytime or perhaps during a previous night, and had gone about the murder with premeditated and horrible coolness, I was powerless to reopen the case, for I knew that, unless I could supply a reasonable motive for the incredible crime, I would be laughed at. So I passed up the whole matter.

"Never did anything about it?" wondered the night clerk.

"No. Never heard of the Fordyces again till two years ago. I was visiting an old sister of mine in Boston. I was sitting on the front stoop one summer evening when I saw Fordyce and his daughter pass, arm in arm. I asked my sister if she knew them and she said their name was Ballard, that Mrs. Kelly, who lived across the street, had known the woman when she was a girl. I went over to see Mrs. Kelly that evening and she said that Ballard's 'real name' was Fordyce, but that he had changed it perhaps on account of his first wife's murder up at Fordham.

"And who is this young woman living with him? Is she his daughter?"

"No," said Mrs. Kelly. "She's his step-daughter. You see he married a widow named Celia something, when her child was about 12 years old. The mother was killed somehow by a burglar, I believe, and a couple of years afterward he turns in and marries the daughter." —Chicago Record-Herald.

New York Society Men.

New York society men are now wearing silk vests, but, says the Chicago Record-Herald, we hasten to give them credit for having thus far held out against the bustle.

A STUDY IN DRESS.

The Wise Woman Selects Colors That Harmonize and Has Her Hair and Waist Match.

It is a wise woman who takes care to secure a hat to match each waist. First get your hat. Then, in picking out your waists, try to make them match or at least "go with" the hat. A waist of steel color may have no more than a hat trimmed with steel. A waist of blue may be matched with a hat whose only blue is found in the polka dots that adorn the silk with which it is trimmed.

It is a distinct study in dress, this matching of one garment to another, but it is one no woman can afford to neglect, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Better a cheap outfit that corresponds throughout, skirt, waist, hat and parasol than an expensive one that looks as though it were picked up here and there.

The black skirt, the blue waist, the tan hat and the brown parasol may be ever so well selected and of the costliest, but the result is seldom pleasing. Better far to match the black skirt with a black waist trimmed with medallions of ecru lace. Then the tan hat will match well; and the brown parasol, if dressed with an ecru bow, will look as though it were part and parcel of the whole.

That is the dress sermon which is being preached by M. Le Hardy, the great French dress apostle, and it is one that all should ponder well.

Speaking of the matter of making a right selection, a New York modiste tells a story.

Having at one time a wealthy patron, a woman of unlimited money, but poor taste, the modiste refused to make her clothes.

"Why not," demanded the customer, on being refused.

"Because, madam, your colors do not harmonize," replied the modiste, boldly. "I shall not lose my reputation."

"But—but," the customer gasped.

"If madam will be wise," intimated the modiste, "and will follow rules, then I might make the gowns."

Then followed directions. She was to buy all reds and browns and blues—three colors that never wear at each other.

This rule applied to this season would call for tomato and coral and blood red. For automobile, cardinal and beet. It would call for wood brown, for butternut color and for tan. It would call for marine, sea and ink blue; for blue, navy and duck's egg. With these one could really do a great deal.

SECRETS OF BEAUTY CULTURE

Persistence in Exercise Is One of the Prerequisites, Says One Who Knows.

And a word to those who long to be "stylish." The wish is not as frivolous as it at first appears. Next to beauty, it is the right of every woman to be becomingly groomed; she owes it to her associates no less than to herself; and from a sartorial point of view, much is in favor of the physically perfected woman. The better proportioned the figure, the more erect the carriage, so much the more artistically simple may be the garments.

Breathing we will consider at another time. Sufficient now to say that it is astonishing, even appalling, how little is known on this vitally important subject, says Alberti, in Truth: the Woman's Forum.

If a girl has been so fortunate as to receive physical education while she is young, so much the better. She then absorbs the instruction just as she does lessons in any other branch of her education, without any clear appreciation of its future benefit; later she learns that true physical culture means culture in the broadest sense; that it is not the development of a few forceful muscles, but the harmonious development of mind and body, aiming to give the highest expression to the spirit that is within her. We who are older, to whom the need of a better body, a clearer mind and a finer soul has but lately been felt, must first get over (what is to many a bete noir) the initial effort. Physical culture exercises are simple and brief. The one essential is not time or relaxation, but persistence. In time, a short time, troublesome effort becomes a fascinating habit, and with strength and grace of body comes a corresponding mental attitude. We realize how closely mind and matter are allied and that soul pervades all. Indeed, bodily training goes hand in hand with the moral and mental growth of man or woman.

Fruit Fritters.

Except where there are children to cater for, milk puddings are rarely seen at the home table of to-day and yet when fruit is served at the other two meals a little variety is certainly needed for dinner, especially when it is desired to make this meal finished and attractive. Drain canned peaches or pears and dip in a batter made as follows: Sift together a cupful and one-third of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, mix gradually to a batter with two-thirds of a cupful of milk; stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs and at the last the stiffened whites. Cook in deep boiling fat, drain the fruit on soft paper and serve with or without sauce or whipped cream. Apples peeled and cut in round slices are excellent cooked in this way and are relished by those who do not care for ordinary dessert. —Washington Star.

Expectation of Life.

A person 20 years old has, on an average, 42 years' life before him if he lives in the United States, 41 if he lives in England and only 37 if his home is in Belgium. —N. Y. Herald.

PLANTS AND BLOSSOMS.

Parsley makes a good border for beds of bright blossoms, and thus fulfills two uses. It is hardy and quite easy to grow.

Who tends a garden knows not doubts or pessimism. With the growing plants faith flourishes, and good spirits thrive inevitably with sunshine and the smell of fresh earth.

That "every other man believes himself a natural farmer" has passed into a proverb. A similar conviction lies at the root of many gardening failures. It is hardly fair to blame seeds or seedsmen for the poor success of a kind of floriculture quite opposite to that prescribed.

The ampolopsis veitchii, or Boston ivy, gives unflinching satisfaction as a porch, wall, or veranda climber. The olive green foliage turns to bright scarlet, crimson, and orange in the autumn, and it will cling to the smoothest surface. Either seeds or young plants may be used to start it.

The balsam is an old-fashioned flower, but it is always attractive. Some of the newer varieties are almost like camellias, and many shades of blue, red, purple, and lilac afford contrast with the white. The dwarf balsams are fine for borders, and the taller kinds look well wherever placed.

The "dear old-fashioned columbine" is always delightful. It comes now in many shades and colors, and the veriest amateur can grow it. The golden, white, sky blue, and purple tones are all satisfactory. White, yellow, and purple, or white, yellow, and blue arranged together will make beautiful beds.

WELL FOR WIVES TO KNOW

It is always decidedly cheaper in the end to buy only good carpets and good furniture.

Brass may be beautifully cleaned and polished with a paste of emery powder and paraffine.

Before laying oilcloth, cover the floor thinly with sawdust. This will increase the wearing power of the oilcloth and will serve to deaden sound.

Make a splendid furniture polish by taking a wineglass of olive oil, one of vinegar, and two tablespoonfuls of alcohol; apply with a soft cloth and polish with flannel.

During the last few years the disposition toward novelty sorts in rugs has been continually growing stronger. These Chinese rugs are an excellent example of this.

To make a cheap floor polish save all the ends of candles, put them in a jar and melt on a stove. Mix enough turpentine to make a soft paste and you will have an excellent polishing material for oilcloth, linoleum, etc., which will cost you hardly anything.

Silk should never be folded away for any length of time in white paper, since the chloride of lime used in bleaching the paper produces a chemical change in the silk and impairs the color. A way to prevent silk or woolen turning yellow is to place pieces of beeswax in with the fabrics when putting them away.

JUST AMONG OURSELVES.

The man who carries a pocket comb or mirror is by no means exceptional.

Some men call women angels—but then you can't believe all that some men say.

The proudest moment in a bride's life is when she sees her first cards bearing the title of Mrs.

The man who has an unusually bright young son is not apt to dispute the doctrine of heredity.

Millions of Fish.

Great attention is being paid this year by the Wisconsin Fish Commission to the stocking of the streams and lakes of that state. Fifteen million pike fry and two million muscalonge are to be distributed in the Wisconsin lakes, and it is proposed by the Wisconsin authorities to give the visitor to that state this summer plenty of sport with rod and line.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway, which reaches all the principal fishing resorts in Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, announces favorable excursion rates and special train service from Chicago and Milwaukee this summer to take care of what they anticipate will be the largest movement to Wisconsin resorts that has ever been known.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boesche's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the "r" disease from the system. It is a cure all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

Wishing of all employments, is the worst.

A Good Thing.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boesche, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in Medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all Lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two billion bottles sold annually. Boesche's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price, 75c. Get Green's Special Almanac. W. T. Brooks.

Oil for the Children.

Give them oil—cod-liver oil. It's curious to see the result.

Give it to the peevish, fretful child, and he laughs. Give it to the pale, anemic child, and his face becomes rosy and full of health. Take a flat-chested child, or a child that has stopped growing, give him the oil, and he will grow big and strong like the rest.

This is not a new scheme. It has been done for years. Of course you must use the right oil. Scott's Emulsion is the one.

Scott's Emulsion neither looks nor tastes like oil because we are so careful in making it pleasant to take.

OLD PEOPLE

Do not always receive the sympathy and attention which they deserve. Their ailments are regarded as purely imaginary, or natural and unavoidable at their time of life. Disease and infirmity should not always be associated with old age. The eye of the gray haired grandire may be as bright and the complexion as fair as any of his younger and more vigorous companions.

Good Blood is the secret of healthy old age, for it regulates and controls every part of the body, strengthens the nerves, makes the muscles elastic and supple, the bones strong and the flesh firm; but when this life fluid is polluted or poisoned and loses its nutritive, health sustaining elements, then there is a rapid decline of the vital powers, resulting in premature old age and disease. Any derangement of the blood quickly shows itself in an ulcer, sore, wart, tumor or some other troublesome growth upon the body, and rheumatic and neuralgic pains become almost constant, accompanied with poor digestion and cold extremities.

SSS S. S. S. being purely vegetable, is the safest and best blood purifier for old people. It does not shock or hurt the system like the strong mineral remedies, but gently and thoroughly cleanses the blood and stimulates the debilitated organs, when all bodily ailments disappear. S. S. S. is just such a tonic as old people need to improve a weak digestion and tone up the Stomach. If there is any hereditary taint, or the remains of some disease contracted in early life, S. S. S. will search it out and remove every vestige of it from the system.

Write us fully about your case and let our physicians advise and help you. This will cost you nothing, and we will mail free our book on blood and skin diseases.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLIC in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION. "SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay, but send for it at once and write full particulars as to your condition and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Quaint, Queer and Curious Salt Lake City.

The late Col. John Cockerel, in The Cosmopolitan said, "There are three unique cities in America, and one of these is Salt Lake City." It is not only unique in its temple, tabernacle and other Mormon church institutions, but quaint in appearance, with its wide streets, immense blocks and martial rows of shade trees. It has, perhaps, more attractions to the square yard than any city in the country, and its climate, while temperate all the year round, is particularly delightful in Summer. The Great Salt Lake, with its magnificent Saltair resort, where the water is "deader and denser" than that in the Dead Sea in Palestine, is an attraction in itself that people come miles to see. There are many cool mountain and lake resorts near by, also numerous very pretty canyons and park drives, and hot sulphur springs. Fishing and hunting can be had in every direction. The trip from Denver to Salt Lake City and Ogden, via the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western, is one of unsurpassed pleasure. Here nature is found in her sternest mood and the whole line is a succession of rugged canyons, waterfalls and picturesque valleys. No European trip can compare with it in grandeur of scenery. During the entire Summer there will be low excursion rates to Salt Lake City and contiguous country. It is on the Pacific coast, if that be your destination. Write S. K. Hooper, G. P. & T. A., Denver, Col., for beautifully illustrated pamphlets, etc.
